

SPAM REPORT GENERATION SYSTEM AND METHOD

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

5 A method of the present invention generally comprises receiving an electronic mail message and determining whether the electronic message is an unsolicited message. If the message is an unsolicited message, it is examined to identify a network address relating to the message and an authority hosting the network address. A report is then generated containing the identified network address and the hosting authority.